Project 3: Maximal Packaging. While there is a trend toward eliminating packaging for consumable consumer products, there is a similar trend toward creating high-end, limited edition packaging for collectors. The packaging in these cases becomes a large part of the desirability/marketability of the product. The packaging itself becomes an art object. Identify a product that you think could use a high-end packaging approach.

Creative Brief

Pretty immediately, I was were drawn towards the idea of a collector's edition of a videogame/videogame series. Videogames have played a very important role in my life and I really wanted to explore that type of design.

I landed on a couple of series, like Custom Robo, Patapon, Katamari Damacy, and ultimately Monument Valley. The Monument Valley series has three games that follow different protagonists as the travel through isometric trickery and minimalistic artwork. The games are full of puzzles and fun surprises so I wanted the box to embody those traits.

Sadly, this project was almost all just the box making and little design takes place. As such, this process book is broken up into appropriate chunks, detailing the process to create the soon to be massive 23" tall box and its many layers that hide its contents.
